Hongkong, November 4th, 1878.

THE reports and rumours in connexion with the Kwangsi rebellion, all of which are ne--cessarily-derived from Chinese-sources, must, of course, be taken, as we have before intimated, with a considerable grain of salt. From the latest received report it appears probable that General Li Yung-choi is still near the borders of Tonquin, though what his intentions are is not very clear. On the one hand it is asserted that he is endeavour. ing to enlist the border outlaws in his service, and on the other it is said that he sets up a claim to be hereditary ruler of Cochin-China. With regard to the latter we are quite unable, from want of information relative to Li's birth and origin, to state positively upon what foundation he could rest such a claim we can only venture upon surmise. It is a good many centuries since a Chinese Viceroy ruled in Tonquin; it was, as far as we can glean from the obscure annals of Cochin-China. some time during the twelth century that the Tonquinese finally drove the Chinese out out of the country and put the Viceroy to death. Subsequent to that period, until Tonquin fell under Annamese rule early in the present century, the Tonquinese mosarchs merely paid tribute to Peking. La YUNG-CHOI may be a remote descendant of the Lr who then threw off the Chinese yoke and founded a new dynasty in Tonquin; but even if he can prove this to be the case, it is not likely the French will recognise his claim, and any attempt to make himself master of Tonquin has, therefore, little chance of success, even though sbacked up by Chinese recognition. The common sense if he thinks the French will years senior curate of West Ham, Essex. allow a revolution in Tonquin. It will be seen, consequently, that if Li Yong-chor is mad enough to undertake such an enterprise as the conquest of Tonquin, which is now a province of Annum, he will Lackay and Ko-vang on the borders of Yunnan and Tonquin. The officers at Chefoe were an exception to the general rule. The Chinese army is never likely to become formidable unless it is officered by Europeans. The lax system prevailing under the Imperial rule does not admit of any real discipline, and the treops become demoralised, while their arms and accourrements are ruined through neglect. Slovenliness is a characteristic of the Chinese as a race, and unless they are sternly kept up to the mark they are certain to allow their arms to be spoiled with rust. The chief occupations of the native soldiery are opiumsmoking and gambling, and they have no status in the army. In fact, the Chinese army consists, as a rule, of bireling desperadoes, who are too lazy to work, and content to accept very small pay for doing next to nothing

The Attorney-General said that if some ont. side merchant had been appointed official assigned in thirty-one estates or in one he would have become a public servant. The construction he put upon the clause was very sweeping, but not too sweeping for the circumstances of the colony. With reference to the other points, as to the appropriation of money to Mr. Huffem's own use, as he understood his learned friend's argument, headmitted that certain sums had been received by the prisoner, that certain specific sums had been shown to be in his possession, and that large balances appeared to be due by him, but said that because it had not been shown. that Mr. Huffam actually appropriated these moneys to his own use the case had not been made out. His did not think he need take up much time with regard to that argument. The fraudulent trustees clause was entirely separate from the embezzlement clause in the ordinance, and, as his learned friend him. self scemed to admit towards the end of his argument, there really was no analogy between his own hands and might not be accountable for it for years. How would it be possible in any way to show how he had misappromoneys which he could not produce The only way in which it could be done would he by his keeping a bank book which the ces-

The soction would be entirely inoperative if such evidence as that wore required Everyone knew what the meaning of conversion and what the evidence of conversion was. - The admission and refusal were quite suffi-Even in embezzlement a departure from the country was quite sufficient to throw the onus of proof on the prisoner, but in the case of a fraudulent trustee lie would ask their lordships how any jury-could come to any other conclusion than they did come to on the evidence. Here they had it that Mr. Huffam, to go no further back than was necessary, received $20,400 from the bank, that he received after that a certrin amount of money more than sufficient to pay everything he was accountable for on the estates that he ought to have had in hand somewhere about $8,000 at the time he drew that $20,000. that he could not properly have expended it in regard to the estate in any way, and that $20,400 at least ought to have been in his hands at the time he went away. They saw further that $4,890 had been paid into his hands as late as July. They found that he called a meeting, that he acknowledged having in hand a very large amount of money, over $40,000, that he declared a dividend, that he promised to give cheques at an early date; he even went so far as to write to one of the parties that the cheques should be paid on the following day. He did not come to the office on the Tuesday, alleging he was ill, and he remained away on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. In the meantime correspondence was going on. He alleged he was all, but called no medical man to prove it. The presumption was that his medical man could not prove it. He went to Macao without any leave whatever. He wrote to the Registrar saying he was going for a few days. All that about going away from Saturday to Monday was beside the question because he did not intend to come back on Monday. He received an order from the court but did not obey it. A policeman was sent over to Macao but was unable to arrest him at that time. He remained there for upwards of two weeks, making no intimation of his return, sending no information to the court, and if he had not been brought on board the steamer by a Portuguese inspector and handed to our inspector he would probably have been there now. Now, how could his -learned friend say there was no attempt at escape. Judging from what he did the prisoner would never have come to throw any light on his accounts and his creditors might have whistled for their money. The jury, taking that into consideration, and also that no explanation whatever had been made, found him guilty. It scarcely came within the point taken by his learned friend, but no explanation had been made at the time, and was it not a case to go to the jury, was there not a prima case which he was called upon to rebut? learned friend had laid before the court the arguments which he daid before the jury unsuccessfully, that there might have been loss, cto., and that Mr. Huffam ought not to be convicted. The jury did not accept those arguments. He contended that there was sufficient evidence to establish a prima facic case which the prisoner could have rebutted if he had been able to do so, If it had been shown what had become of this money, how it had been invested, how it had been lest, of course that would have been a circumstance for the jury to have taken into consideration with regard to his guilt or innocence, but at the time his learned friend closed his case there was abundant evidence to convict if the prisoner was unable to explain his accounts. It would be impossible to convict in nine cases out of ten unless you could refer to presumptive evidence. A certain number of facts being proved what was the presumption the jury might arrive at? In no case would the jury be more justified in coming to the conclusion they did than in this. Of course every presump tion was liable to be rebutted, and there might have been evidence produced at that moment to show Mr. Hultam's innocence. His learned friend had referred to what was possible. Juries were not to acquit simply because there was a possibility a man might be innocent; they were to take a clear, common senso view of the case and deal with it as if it was business of the greatest importance to themselves personally. The learned Attorney then referred to Mr. Francis's objection that the prisoner had only been charged with converting the money to his own use, and not with disposing of it in any of the other ways mentioned in the Ordinauce, and said that the reason those words were inserted in the Ordinance was that in case the evidence showed he had not appropriated it to his own use he might be charged with disposing of it by the other methods mentioned. He referred to the impossibility of showing what had become of money misappropriated by a trustee, and submitted the conviction ought to be sustained. Mr Francis briefly replied, urging that no test of employment by the Crown applied in Mr. Hall had given all their private effects to the Huffam's onse; also that the whole property in an estate vested absolutely in the Official Assignce, and that it would be a perversion of language to assert that he could be guilty of the embezzlement or largeny of that money.

Their lordships reserved judgment.

> POSTAL NOTIFICATION. General Post Office, Hongkong,

9th July, 1878. SIR.—An impression seems to have got abroad amongst the Mercantile Community here that correspondence from China for London when for-ARMY and NAVY and MEMBERS of the warded by French Packet will reach its destina-CIVIL and CONSULAR SERVICES in com- tion more quickly if directed via Naples than if l sent viñ Marseilles.

I have pointed out to the senders (who have been induced to redirect their letters for the Marseilles route) that this idea is most probably mistaken. As, however, the French Post Office Agent whom I consulted could not speak positively on the point. I have the honour to request information as to whether I am correct in supposing that no time would be gained by sending correspondence or closed mails for London to Naples instead of to Marseilles.—I bave, &c., A. Postmaster General of Hongkong. J. Tilley, Esq., C.B., London.

General Post Office, London. 4th September. Sin. In reply to your letter of the 9th July last, No. 478. I beg leave to inform you that advantage would certainly be gained by sending via Naples instead of via Marseilles, the mails for England which you office make up for conveyance by French Packet. In the ordinary course, those mails, if landed at Naples, should reach London twelve hours sooner than if carried on by the Packet to Marseilles. Such being the case, I have to suggest that the mails in question should be addressed in future via Naples.—I am &c.,

Under instructions from the London Post Office, the mails for the United Kingdom which have hitherto been forwarded via Marseilles, will understood that a gain of twelve hours results from the adoption of this route. the United Kingdom by French Packet will be An impression appears to prevail that correspondence for the Mediterranean stations, Gibraltar, Malta, Cyprus, the Lovant, Turkey, &c., can be forwarded only by British Packet. forms can also be stamped if required. ALPRED LISTER, Collector. Stamp Office, Hongkong, 19th July, 1878.

Many hores of letters are received at the Post Office not sealed, that is to say, the box is fastened with sealing war, but there is no impression of a seal. The attention of boxholders is called to the necessity of carefully sealing such boxes with some recognisable seal and of sending a chitbook or receipt with them. The omission of the latter precaution leaves a doubt as to when ther the contents of the box ever reached the Post Office; the omission of the former, as to whether part of them might not have been abstracted for the sake of the Postage Stamps.

THE GREAT RIDDLE If, then, we would seek in Lucretius for. any thoughts or considerations beyond those valued only by the student, the bookworm, and the critic, we shall find that they lie in this—in the way in which he brings home to us the advance which the world has made not so much in the means for solving the riddle of things; as in the knowledge of how hard and how complicated the riddle is. We have, it is true, ampler means for discovering true answers, but the question grows before us far more rapidly than the answer does. Farther and farther, certainly and more certainly, are men pushing their conquests into regions that were once mysterious, and yet the mystery that has not been conquered remains more formidable than ever; or else, if we would fain have nothing of mystery, at all, a choice confronts us more momentous than was ever offered to the ancient world Either man's life is a mystery to be solved by no scientific method, a mystery which no scien- Japan with foreign countries, together with tific method so much as sheds a glimmer of various Acts, Ordinances, and Regulations relight on-either there is an order of lating to Commerce and Shipping. things which the proofs and vertifications of the physicists cannot touch, or even go near to, things supernatural, supersensual, and essentially unmaterial, whose way are not the ways of matter, nor the laws of matter its laws; and if this be so, in this region is to be sought by faith a reconciliation of $5; or, with the Lists of Residents, Port Direcall the contradictions that torment us: or tories, Maps, &c., at $3. else, if all this be untrue, then there are really in things no contradictions at all. except those of our own making.
